Sachiko Tsukazaki (Japan) • • • • •

I joined AIS (Asaka-area International society) this March quite by chance.

There are various kinds of encounters in our lives such as coming across a great book and fine music, or a chance encounter with a marvelous movie. More than anything else, a nice encounter with people makes a strong impression on me.

I run across a variety of cultures and languages here in our international society. Every time I attend it, I am thrilled and excited to discover something new. While enjoying the monthly events, I've become more aware of our language. Mixing with a lot of people lets me find something new and take notice of the many differences between us, and this experience leads to discovering a new aspect of myself.

Looking at foreign members doing their best in Japan, a foreign land far from their mother countries, I get a lot of courage and energy from them. I look forward to your continued acquaintance.
