Challenging New Things!

Rosana Emi Yamaguchi(Brazil)

“Can you teach Brazilian cooking?”

That's how it all started. I cannot say I didn't hesitate a bit at the beginning, but now I'm glad I accepted the request.

I was given the opportunity to teach Brazilian cuisine cooking, which I love to do. At first, I was worried whether everybody would like the taste and seasoning. But seeing how everyone was having fun preparing the dishes made my worries vanish. It was awesome when I heard some of them would try to prepare a home what they learned in this event.

In the past, when I took part in AIS events, I was there to learn. Now that I experienced the other side of an event, I realized how hard all AIS members work, plan, research, and arrange many things for an event to be a success. I truly admire it.

Thanks for giving me the opportunity to have such a great experience.
